Personal Statement

"Why is it just so hard to control my emotions?" Have you ever asked this question to yourself? There may be situations that you might not be able to control. Circumstances happen that may make your life a living hell. Amidst all the chaos, you might feel hopeless and alone. You might have tried to force/suppress those negative emotions and now you have become apathetic to them. What if I told you there was a way for us to be able to control our emotions? What if I told you that you do not have to feel as bad as you do now. Come join me in finding what works best for you. I can create a safe and supportive environment where you do not feel like you're being judged or told what to do. It is your space to freely discover more about yourself and discover what might hold you back. I want to help you become the best version of yourself.
